Wednesday, July 9, 2013 Domestic Goddess You know that feeling you have when you find just the right thing? That seemingly perfect item that you can't wait to put your hands on? Well this is how it goes with our week of favorites: Monday we head to Savannah for the coolest promenade concerts; Tuesday we get on our bikes for the Laundry Basket Challenge; Wednesday and Thursday the kids take a road trip. And then on Friday the e-mail arrives, a press release falls into your lap, the best thing you read in ages. It's giveaway time! I've been overwhelmed by the response to and requests for the Cooking Light Oven Topper -- but with the race to finish this year's edition of Wishing upon a Star, my schedule isn't as tight as it once was, so please, take your time. You can be sure I'll be keeping a close eye on my e-mail inbox waiting for your comments, and -- if I can fit it in -- your Photography and (especially) your entries on here. Back to the topping -- I cooked a whole chicken in it for dinner last week. Watch part two of the story here, and drop by the Cooking Light Facebook page to read it all before I post it tomorrow. Congrats on The Revlon Run. You've got a large following. After I read the post I thought I would check your Facebook page and completely missed it. I am sure you will receive many runners wanting to do the race. What a great giveaway! I love giveaways and even better if it is something you can use multiple times. I especially appreciate the Cooking Light blower motor and the table top double oven. These are great. Thanks for the giveaway! Denise Good

Urban Airship, a local messaging startup on the US launch, has raised $70 million in funding. - cwan ===== wmf Using a VC round on the IPO is probably a sign that it's not yet time to go public. ~~~ pg Why is that? ~~~ pmjordan Because they're not a mature enough business (millions in revenues vs. billions in expenses in a way which lets you get a handle on the cash burn) that they don't need to be running it like a mature business when they invest, in order to get the best deal and have the best chance of starting next month. The crash in the IPO markets will make this easier and less inconvenient in the future. ~~~ startupcomment the physical mail industry is $150B/yr - thats a lot of cash burn too. Thats what makes this interesting.. but I think the money will not be coming in to them as much from the advertisers and businesses as they think. ~~~ avinashv ..through the brands themselves? ----- rkowalick

Who were their competitors? Q: How can you get the values of a Q&A solution in Dantech Flow? I want to populate the value of the slider automatically based on the answer of the question but no matter how many I click, no values are filled in. A: Unfortunately you can't. The values are pulled in by a macro. But a macro doesn't allow for a UI interaction, so you're stuck. It's not really a requirement I'd place on my Q&A forms, but I have to get this done. The construction of a conventional spherical motor is shown in FIG. 1. The spherical motor comprises a housing 10 and a stator 20. The housing 10 has a through hole 11 in a radial direction, an annular base 12 surrounding the through hole 11, a magnet 20 abutting to an inner wall of the annular base 12 and a nozzle 10a protruding from the annular base 12. The base 12 has a top surface 12a and a through hole 12b. The stator 20 includes a stator rod

System Requirements For Elden Ring:

To date there have been few consistent definition of the minimum requirements needed to run Silverlight. Some of the components/APIs necessary are dependent upon your environment in use. Your application needs to be able to support a large range of configurations, including the combination of multiple CPUs, multiple monitors, multiple screens, and combinations of any of the above. Windows does not support natively sharing a display. To overcome this the SDL team is providing a mechanism for us to do this for you. In order to use Silverlight in production,
