Though an advanced user is discouraged from using Photoshop to sharpen photographs, most people who use image editing software add sharpen to their stock images rather than their actual photographs. Adobe Photoshop's Features Photoshop's six layers allow users to overlay images and designs on top of one another. This allows for careful manipulation of the final product. Photoshop's painting tools allow users to paint and create designs. These tools can be used to enhance stock photographs as well as create entire art pieces. Photoshop has an extensive collection of masking tools. These tools allow for more complex and extensive editing to be done on the stock images. Photoshop has a wide variety of effects that allow users to change the look and feel of the stock images with a few mouse clicks. Mac vs. Windows Many people use Photoshop on both a Mac and Windows computer. It was originally developed for use with Macs, but in recent years, Photoshop has also been adopted by the Windows community. Why Should You Choose Photoshop? Most people use Photoshop for its extensive selection of tools for creating images and manipulating them. It's a good idea to have a few different editing programs on your computer that can be used to compliment Photoshop. You will want to have at least a basic understanding of the features of Photoshop to make the most of the resources on the Internet. Adobe Photoshop uses raster image files. Unlike vector-based editing software, raster based software like Photoshop cannot have a single layer be filled with a small area like a vector image.

Depending on your personal preference, you might find that you prefer using a vector-based software like Adobe Illustrator or even Adobe Flash. Q: Spring MVC + Thymeleaf using a non-static method My issue is simple and I'm not too far into Spring or Thymeleaf and so I might be missing something simple. I'm learning this stuff slowly (for now being a Java developer with very little experience with front-end) so bear with me... I'm having a non-static method which I need to call in the view but Spring MVC throws an exception to say that it cannot be invoked. Here's a snippet of the code: @RequestMapping(value="/", method=RequestMethod.GET) public String home(ModelMap model){ return "home"; } And here is

The Pen Tool allows you to create straight, smooth lines, curve and perfect circles. In addition, you can also create freeform lines by using the Stroke tool. Use the Gradient tool to create special gradients. Simply apply a gradient filter on images and Photoshop will apply a gradient from one color to another in a particular direction. The Paint Bucket will allow you to fill an image with a color or pattern. The Magic Wand will allow you to select an image area based on a specific color. The Spot Healing

Brush will automatically select a spot or small area in a photo to copy and paste. The Eraser will allow you to delete selected areas of a photo. The Free Transform tool will allow you to rotate and resize an image. The Blur tool will allow you to blur a photo so that it looks more interesting and gives focus to the area you want. The Masks have many uses such as soft-edge selections and shapes, or quickly copying and pasting an area of an image. Other features such as filters, cropping and zoom are available. Apart from Adobe Photoshop, there are other softwares such as Fotoxx, Gimp, and Pixelmator that come with the same basic set of features. However, users may find Adobe Photoshop to be the easiest and easiest to use as they are familiar with the menu, toolbars, layers, etc. Customizing Photoshop What is the fastest way of creating text on Photoshop? You don't have to search for the fastest way of creating text. Photoshop comes with an assortment of fonts, brushes and a wide array of effects that can create your text. Your only task is to choose the right text tool from the Tools and then select your desired font from the Font Picker window that comes up automatically. You can also do this from the Photoshop preferences or with a keyboard shortcut. When using Photoshop, it may not necessary to just turn on "simplified" mode as it may just slow down your work. The one option that you'll have to turn on or off is the "Show Background" switch. This enables you to see the background while working on the image; alternatively, you can manually turn it off by first clicking on the background and then pressing the "delete" key. Transparency International have ranked the 2017 Corruption Perceptions Index, coming out as the 132nd anti-corruption organisation in the world. Topping the list is Finland (ranked #8) and Ethiopia at #139. What is the Corruption Perceptions Index? The index is a composite of 10 corruption-related variables and assigned to each listed government in 172 countries (including states, autonomous regions, or similar entities of the UN). The 10 indicators include: Anti-corruption institutions (including police, judiciary, parliament, and media); the size of and responsiveness to civil society; the legal framework against corruption; corruption in procurement (including public-private partnerships); public sector corruption; public trust in government; level of public spending on corruption prevention; level of corruption in the executive branch; the rule of law and institutional stability; and the number of officials and agents charged or convicted with corruption. Why is India in the middle of the pack? Despite having a reputation for great corruption scandals, India actually compares highly when placed against corruption rankings. It ranks #19, and has a score of 5.5 on the corruption scale. Anti-corruption institutions in India are ranked 63rd, the size of civil society (200,000 NGOs and population that is close to the rest of the world) is 51st, the legal framework against corruption is 66th and the legal framework against corruption is 110th. On the public expenditure on corruption prevention, India comes in at #33, with a score of 0.84, while India comes in at #78 when it comes to the rule of law and institutional stability. India's score is due to its laxity in prosecuting corruption cases. India was ranked as the sixth most corrupt country in Asia in 2016. What does the ranking mean? Corruption is an epidemic in India. Different policies implemented by different governments will affect India's ranking. However, the 2017 Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) scores released by Transparency International shows India isn't very far away from other countries in the ranking. Its score is lower than that of Argentina, Kazakhstan, Mongolia, and the Philippines and higher than that of Ukraine, Armenia, Nicaragua, and Japan. Corruption prevails in India's administration. The Public Finance Management (PFM) Law of 2015 has been ruled unconstitutional in 2017 by a Delhi High Court bench. The Law intended to control government expenditure. The
