Sijil Cuti Sakit Pdf Download.Current management of ascending aortic disease. Ascending aortic disease is a very frequent condition in patients undergoing coronary surgery. Its incidence can vary from 5 to 20% of patients. It can be classified in two categories: classic aortic stenosis and aortic aneurysm. The former, due to primary valve damage, is caused either by congenital or degenerative pathology with a progressive end-stage valvular disease. The latter is an inflammatory, degenerative pathology with a rapid clinical evolution. Ascending aortic aneurysms are most of the time asymptomatic but in the presence of symptoms, they must be studied by transthoracic echocardiography (TTE), transesophageal echocardiography (TEE), chest radiography and computed
