1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image forming apparatus and an image forming method, and more particularly to an image forming apparatus and an image forming method, which are capable of efficiently managing a document and an image recorded on a recording medium in association with each other.

2. Description of the Related Art As is well known, a digital copier, for example, is used as an image forming apparatus which performs an image forming job in which a document is read with a scanner and an image is recorded on a sheet of paper. When a document is read, management information is generated to describe various information about the document. Such management information is stored in a memory for example, and then taken out for processing. In general, such management information is represented by a character string and is presented to a user of the apparatus. As the information about the document is increased, a greater amount of management information is generated and stored in the memory. This may make the memory unusable, in particular, if the information cannot be promptly taken out for processing. Furthermore, the management information may be independently stored in a memory each time the document is read. Therefore, it is difficult to collectively manage the management information in association with the image recorded on a sheet of paper. Therefore, with a view to efficiently managing the management information in association with the image recorded on a sheet of paper, there have been proposed various image forming apparatus having functions of recognizing character information and a layout of a sheet of paper. When a document is read and an image is recorded on the sheet, an image forming apparatus may present the recognized character information and the layout of a sheet on the screen of the apparatus in association with the image recorded on the sheet. In this way, however, in many cases, the recognition results have not always matched the user's intention. Specifically, if the document is not read in a sufficiently long time, the document is inclined to be incorrectly recognized. If the recognition results are fed back to the user while a sheet of paper is being conveyed, the recognition results may be delayed, and the user has had to wait for a long time. The present invention relates to an audio reproducing system, and more particularly to a system of an audio reproducing apparatus capable of simultaneously reproducing audio and video signals from a plurality of video and audio sources. Generally, there is known an audio reproducing system capable of simultaneously reproducing audio and video signals from a plurality of audio and video sources, for example,

A phase I trial of the antiestrogen tamoxifen in combination with splenectomy in advanced ovarian cancer. A Gynecologic Oncology Group Study. Tamoxifen, an antiestrogen, was given to patients with advanced ovarian cancer after cytoreductive surgery. There were two objectives. First, to determine the maximum tolerated dose (MTD) of tamoxifen when given concurrently with cytoreduction, followed by surgical removal of the spleen, and then maintenance tamoxifen. The second objective was to determine the safety and efficacy of this combination. This was a phase I clinical trial in which tamoxifen was given in 3-week cycles with surgery and then tamoxifen was maintained as long as there was no evidence of progressive disease. Seventeen patients were treated at four dose levels. There were no dose-limiting toxicities, two patients received only the 2.5-mg dose, and the others received the 5-mg dose. Fourteen patients (82%) had either a decrease in size of the residual tumor or a complete disappearance of microscopic residual disease. At the completion of a tamoxifen treatment period, 10 of 12 patients (83%) had a total resection. A dose of 5 mg tamoxifen followed by surgical removal of the spleen and then maintenance tamoxifen is tolerated well by most patients. This regimen appears to be clinically active in patients with advanced ovarian cancer following surgical cytoreduction. Close to the end of Sunday's service, the gunman, 26-year-old Devin Kelley, opened fire and was killed at the scene after a brief chase. The gunman was described as a Texan man in his late 20s or early 30s. He appeared to be dressed in black and was armed with two handguns, a rifle and a vest with pouches containing ammunition. As a 26-year-old Texan man in his early to mid-30s opened fire in a small rural church, people inside had a difficult time understanding what was happening.
